

Project Documentation – Pick Your Travel

Team Overview and Responsibilities

This project was developed as a part of a group project where each team member was assigned one page of the travel website. Greeshma did the Home page, Sitong designed the About Us page, Dharanya did the Tour page, and Arya did the Contact Us page. Each of us ensured that our page followed the theme, layout, and design to maintain the site's consistency and professionalism

Project Purpose

The purpose of this website is to provide users with a beautiful and friendly site to browse travel packages and communicate with a fictional travel agency called Pick Your Travel. The site highlights domestic and international tours, company values, and options for immediate contact. Our major goal was to make it easier for users to understand what we have to offer and encourage them to plan their dream trips.

Project Planning and Ideas

We called it "Pick Your Travel" to show freedom to choose and customized service. We agreed to build four pages in total: Home, About Us, Services, and Contact. We used HTML, CSS, and JavaScript and added Font Awesome and Google Fonts for external styles and icons. The website design is completely responsive.

We created a common folder to store our files; however, we were clear about which task was to be done. We chatted and met regularly and shared ideas among ourselves while working on this project. Once we were all done, we even checked each other's work for design consistency and responsiveness.

Greeshma created the Home page, which includes a stunning hero section with a heading and background image, a prompt enquiry form, and a testimonials section to trust. The page creates the first impression and sets the tone for the whole site.

Sitong designed the About Us page, where we present ourselves, our vision, and information regarding our members. This area enables users to get to know who we are and what makes us different.

Dharanya worked on the Services page, where all the packages are shown. The packages are categorized under international, national, and local tours. Each card contains an image, title, duration, description, and price. There are also "Details" buttons that trigger popups with additional information.

Arya developed the Contact Us page with a clear and concise form for users to input their name, email, subject, and message. It also contains business address, phone number, email, and working hours. The page is made so that communication is easy and seamless.

Design Goals

Our design was based on the four key elements: simplicity, responsiveness, user engagement, and visual appeal. A consistent color palette, smooth transitions, and clear section headings. Every section was properly spaced for readability, and to make it easy to navigate are some of the innovative elements that we put in our design.

Timeline and Milestones

We possessed a structured timeline to finish each phase of the project within the time. The folder structure and starting HTML were finished on April 3. The home page was done by Greeshma by April 5, the About Us page was done by Sitong by April 6, and the Services page was done by Dharanya by April 8. Arya wrapped up the Contact page by April 9. We spent April 10 to 12 for testing, making design changes, and fixing responsiveness issues. We tested the site on multiple browsers and devices to ensure full compatibility and performance.

Project Folder Structure

Our project folder is neatly structured and easy to use. It contains the primary HTML files for every page, a CSS folder for styling, a script folder for JavaScript functions, and an images folder for all the visuals.

The primary files are:

index.html for the Home page

about.html for the About Us section service.html for the Services

contact.html for the Contact page

css/styles.css for the styling

script/scripts.js for interactive components

images/ for package images

Final Result

Overall, Pick Your Travel was an effective group project that provided us with lessons on collaboration, web development, and user interface design. Each member of the team gave their best effort and collaborated towards ensuring the website appeared and behaved professionally. We are satisfied with the result, and the final site is a clean, sleek, and responsive travel site. The experience was instrumental in helping us mature as designers and developers and in enhancing our teamwork and planning capabilities.
